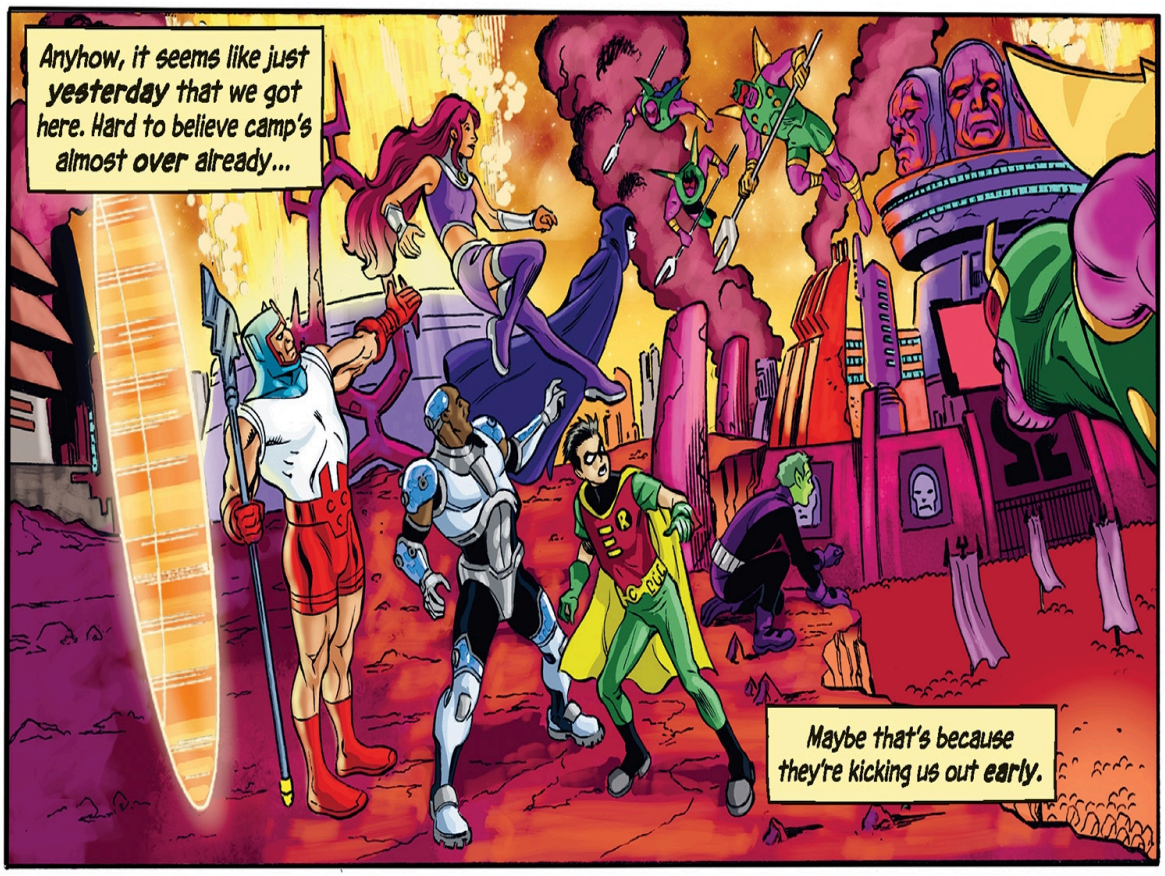
A letter from camp!
Hey, Dad!
Sorry for not writing sooner. With all the demons, giant monsters, and bagpipes, camp's been kinda busy.
Well, maybe not as busy as the time your lab experiment backfired, an alien monster destroyed half my body, and I had to spend months getting the rest of my parts fused to a robot body.
But camp's been pretty busy, too.
Oh, no hard feelings for that whole alien thing, by the way.



Anyhow, it seems like just yesterday that we got here. Hard to believe camp's almost over already...
Maybe that's because they're kicking us out early.

Even so, camp taught us a lot. Robin learned to work together.
Beast Boy found out that he shouldn't play pranks...
Unless he's fighting a giant monster, that is.

Raven learned to keep a closer eye on her sandwiches.
And Starfire learned how to build a house out of popsicle sticks.
SOLD
Bumblebee's moving into it next week.
So I think we all learned a little something.
I mean, except Beast Boy. He never learns anything.

get the chance, could you send me some spare parts?
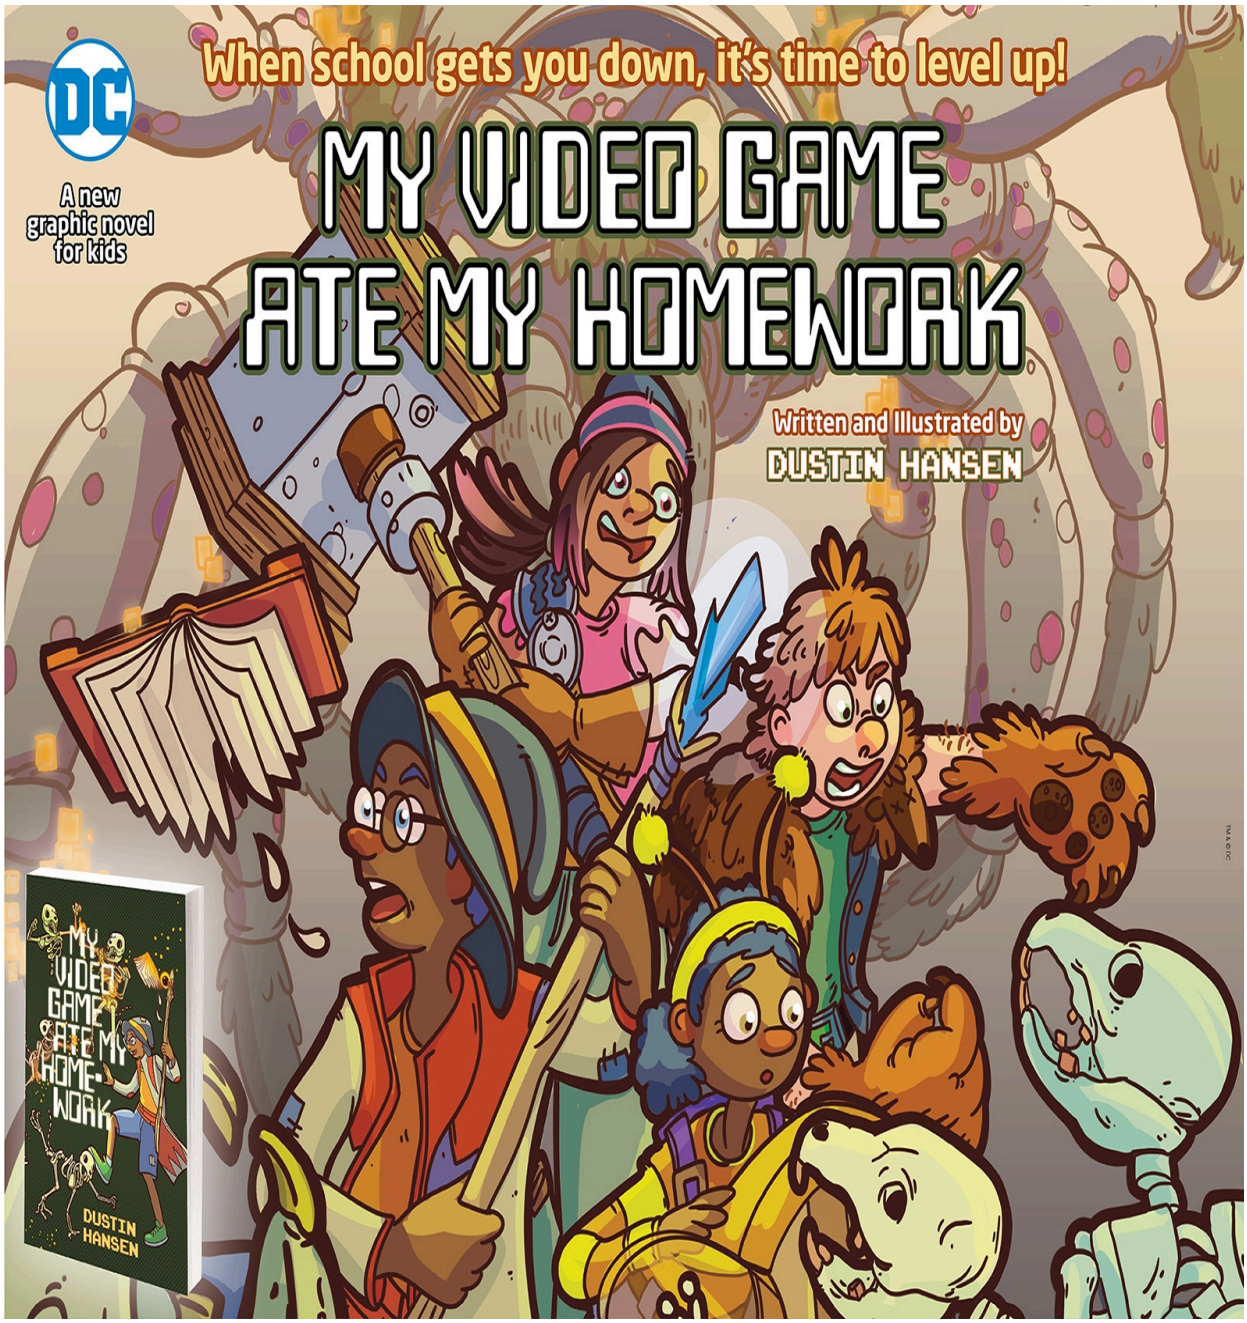
Anyway, if you get the chance, could you send me some spare parts?
The obstacle course was kind of rough.
Oh, and cookies, too.
C'mon, bro! Time to get dressed and go!
I think we found most of you.
Although I am not certain that the right foot is yours.

Do we have everything?
Head? Hand?
More important, don't forget my letter! Otherwise I won't get cookies.
No problemo. I've got the letter.
And that means I'll get all those sweet, sweet cookies!
What?!



When school gets you down, it's time to level up!
